

MA IN LANGUAGES AND CULTURES

School of Languages, Literatures and Cultures

MA in Languages and Cultures

This MA programme enables graduates to develop advanced skills in languages and to explore the connections between languages and cultures in today's globalised world. It allows students to specialise in any of the language subjects in the School of Languages, Literatures and Cultures in UCC including French, Spanish, German, Italian and Portuguese.

Do you have advanced skills in French, German, Spanish, Italian or Portuguese? Are you looking to expand your skills base and boost your future employability?

This programme offers a pathway to employment in a range of sectors including education, tourism and heritage, business or to further research and study.

On this programme, you have the opportunity to further develop your advanced language skills and acquire additional language competence. You will be able to acquire skills in the areas of translation, teaching methodologies, digital humanities and research. You will also be able to explore how languages convey cultural meanings and transmit philosophical ideas as well as deepen your historical and cultural knowledge of the contexts of the languages you study. New for 2016-2017 is a work placement module enabling you to acquire hands-on experience in a cultural organization for the arts.

Core courses involve:

- Workshops around the themes of intercultural communication, mobilities and borders.
- Research training including presentation skills, research journals and a dissertation.

With a wide selection of modules to choose from:

- French, German, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese, Catalan, Galician
- Intercultural Communication, Teaching and Pedagogy
- Borders, Migration, Mobility
- World Literature, Film
- Work placement
- Translation Studies
- Digital Cultures

The School of Languages, Literatures and Cultures, University College Cork.

The School of Languages, Literatures and Cultures at UCC offers a range of opportunities to develop your language and intercultural skills to an advanced level. Our Masters' programmes provide specialised training in research, digital and intercultural communication skills as well as professional language skills. We offer courses that are tailored to your particular needs and an environment that is friendly and student-oriented.

For more information on all our programmes please see our website: www.ucc.ie/en/sllc/ and Facebook: www.facebook.com/sllucc

Alma Cordova, MA in Languages and Cultures, 2015 writes:

"To begin, the incredible support available from the faculty and staff in the School of Languages, Literatures and Cultures as well as the Admissions and Fees departments, made for a fluid transition into the University. The faculty in my M.A. program, specifically my thesis supervisor, were all very welcoming and went above and beyond to be of the utmost support throughout my time enrolled in the program. The city of Cork itself also complements the amazing experience and support that is available at UCC."

For further information on the MA in Languages and Cultures, please contact Programme Co-ordinator:

Dr. Mary Noonan, m.noonan@ucc.ie

or

Janet Milner, j.milner@ucc.ie

Applications:

Applications are made on-line at www.pac.ie.
For information on the application procedure see: <http://www.ucc.ie/en/postgraduate/>

School of Languages,
Literatures &
Cultures